

A letter of recommendation to those who desire professional excellence in buying or selling their residence:

I have interacted with many real estate agents, both commercial and residential. I offer my unsolicited wholehearted recommendation of Stefan Walker. In my opinion he is the most diligent and responsive agent I have encountered. It is rare to have an agent as well versed in real estate contracts as he is. His valuation of market pricing was accurate. Despite the severe market downturn and difficulties in the upper end properties, his marketing efforts quickly generated activity that resulted in multiple offers within weeks. Yes, the property sold and we were very well represented throughout the process.

My selection was narrowed down to three agents and after interviews, you were selected because you were very well prepared and we believed your promises. I am very pleased to say your promises were kept. You marketed the way you said you would and communicated with us throughout the process.

I have recommended you to others and will continue to do so. Unfortunately, my acquaintances chose to err as many do - they select brokers that live near them or are friends. They may experience a satisfactory result, but not the best result.

David Favre

December 19, 2009